LE52-1 Leading Through Change and Building Resilience

Change is constant in modern organisations and the ability to navigate it effectively — while maintaining performance, supporting others and sustaining personal resilience — is one of the most important skills a professional can develop. This practical one-day programme explores how change impacts individuals and teams and equips participants with the mindset, tools and strategies to respond constructively rather than reactively. The course builds personal resilience, develops adaptability under pressure and provides practical approaches to support colleagues and teams through periods of uncertainty and transition.
